“ Dear Kathy, I am so sorry. My heart hurts for you. I stand firm that your grandson is in the arms of angels and that you and yours will be with him again.

“ I am so sorry for your loss of Theo. Having known his grandmother, Kathy, since childhood, and having met her rambunctious, loving family, I know Theo was surrounded by strong, loyal, and kind people -- people who would have raised him up to be an amazing man. While I never met Theo, his smile in photos shows me he was a funny, warm-hearted boy who would definitely have held his own in this family of strong personalities. I should say he IS a funny, warm-hearted boy -- my beliefs give me conviction that Theo lives on in another realm, bringing joy and teaching wisdom. I know Theo and his family will be reunited someday. In the meantime, it may bring comfort to imagine he is with his amazing great, great grandmother, Kathryn Barner, who zestfully taught many of us to ride horses at Miles River Riding School back in the 1970s and 80s.
