“ I don't even know where to begin. I feel like a piece of my soul left with you. Definatly a piece of my heart. You and I had, as one of our good friends described, an unbreakable bond, Boy were they right on point with that. You were my sister, my friend. and for 31 years we were as one. We raised our kids together, shared the birth of grand babies and in every aspect we shared our lives. I remember when i met you on the beach in Betterton, my twins were 1 year old and Sabrina was 2.. You were running a daycare back then and you were on a raft floating when we met. I can see it like It was yesterday. That smile, that way you had about you that made anyone feel good around you. You came up to the house later that night and from that moment we were destined to be the friends and family that we became. I miss you so much and fighting back these tears to finish this tribute. I will always carry you in my heart and my soul and until we meet again know one thing there will never be anyone else like you. You deserved to be happy and this year brought you so much sadness and my biggest regret was that I could not help to ease your pain. I love you so much and I am so lost without you. Until we meet again please know when I look to the clouds I will pick one and see you looking down from it. I know you are with your family and your son now and at peace but i want you back. Love you, Maggie Patterson

My heart is very heavy for her children. I knew her for many years and she was very kind and giving to all she knew. I will never forget the time I was standing outside of my home that had just burned to the ground, and she pulled her car up to me and hugged me and gave me 100$, no hesitation, hugged me and told me to let her know if we needed anything. That was the kind of person she was. I loved her boys like my own. I hope she is finally at peace. My recommendation would be to donate, volunteer and advocate for Domestic Violence.

“ I worked with Sandy at Vonnie's when I was teenager. She and another waitress Sherry always looked out for me. We had a lot of laughs together. She looked out for me as if I were her own son. She always expressed her deep love for her children. I'm heartbroken to see her sons suffer yet another loss. You both will be in my thoughts and prayers. I know it is difficult, but you didn't lose a mother; you gained another guardian angel.
