“ I am so sorry for your loss, I know you will miss such a talented, witty and so funny mother. She treated me like a mother. I have countless memories of her but a couple really stand out. When she moved to Union Church rd house, Her dear friend Sally Mangels was there, "she said lets get a picture of this "cleared" table because we will never see it again. I loved all the stories she would tell me about her and the girls and also the great fun with George, I really loved the one on cleaning asparagus and the fish. I still have the vegetarian cookbook that she loaned me. She was a bright light to everyone

Thank you so much Donna. You have reignited memories that were starting to flicker out. Sally was right on target. It all was in perfect order in her eyes.

“ Anne and George were awaiting my parents and I plus one dog after a 2 week cross-country trip in the motorhome. She made us fresh crab cakes the night of our arrival. I've tried them once or twice since then. I should have known. Crab Cakes would be ruined for me once I tasted Anne's. George doted on his beloved "Little One" and we spent two weeks parked next to the porch of the Rock Hall home. Since Libby passed when I was three, I only have one memory of my grandmother. Shamefully, it was me screaming because my parents were going out to dinner and I hated how her big pink chair smelled.

Much like her brother Semmes took the position of my substitute grandfather, in place of the late Bert, Anne was the closest to a grandmother I ever had. We connected within hours. I know she must have made all who crossed her path feel the same. Although those two weeks in 1996, the summer of the reunion, were the longest time span I ever got to spend with Anne, she welcomed me into her heart and spoiled me with love and affection as if I was one of her own granddaughters. She introduced me to every person at that Crab Feed Reunion. How did she seem so close and connected with every member of the family? And how did a family have so many people? And she said "this is one of the smaller reunions". You would think such a little lady wearing so many hats would be stretched thin.

But with Aunt Anne, I could tell she was one of those women whose heart had unlimited capacity. There was more than enough of her love to go around. Her light and energy were bountiful. Her eyes sparkled.

The only solace I have today is that Libby, after over 40 years, and her brother Semmes, after too many years not here, have their sister Anne at their sides once again.

God bless all who loved and were loved by my dearest Great Aunt Anne. Until we meet again.

Ever yours,

“ My mother is a resident of Heron Point and was befriended “Miss Anne” when she arrived on Willowbrook Court. They usually sat together at meals and Friday Bingo. I always enjoyed spending time with your Mom when I visited. She had such a sharp wit and I thoroughly enjoyed her sense of humor. I actually saw her Wed night as I was leaving my Mom and had a chance to greet her. She will be much missed!
