“ In school Caroline and I would cross paths, but rarely spoke. She was shy, older, and too beautiful for me to muster the courage to get to know. We reconnected after all of these years, and I was lucky enough to be able to get to know her better. She had remained quite beautiful and shy, but showed herself to be kind, witty, insightful, empathetic, and above all, loving. She made me feel like I was part of her family, and she showed me the importance of celebrating the triumphs in my life, great or small. She will forever be missed, and I will carry her in my heart forever.

“ There's nobody I would rather sit with at the middle school lunch table. There's nobody I would rather take turns with tormenting each other on weekly basis. There's nobody I would rather have try to make me faint by applying pressure to the carotid artery on a bus trip to New York City in the late 90s. There's nobody I would rather watch E.T. and laugh with. There's nobody I would rather illegally drive home with only a learner's permit. She had the warmest personality, and treated everyone with such kindness. The world needs more people like her; and I send my strongest prayers to her family.

“ Growing up with Caroline was one of the highlights of my life. I was so lucky to call her my best friend and sister through some of the most impressionable years of my life. You don't realize what you have when you have it and that could not be more true of Caroline. We were young and experiencing all of life's "firsts" together. I remember her wicked sense of humor. No one could make me belly laugh like she could but she was also incredibly deep and kind. We had some of the best conversations laying out on my back deck or driving around in my really beat up car in high school. I'll treasure every photo I have, that thankfully reminds me of her amazing laugh every time I look at them. Thank you, Caroline. For being one of the most influential people in my life. You will be incredibly missed. My heart is with her family during this time.
