“ Dylan, My Son:

When you came to us you were our "Little Dylan Pickle", our "Mattress Dylan". You brought us joy.

When your sisters came four and eight years latter you showed us your true colors. You were helpful, loving and protective of them. Wonderful traits that you carried your whole life.

You may not have had much in the material world, but in the coin of human kindness you were a rich man and you will be beloved forever.

I am so proud to be your father. I only wish we had more time.

Your loving father##imported-begin##Larry Sigler##imported-end##
