

Eiann Seward Connell

February 15, 2007 - May 23, 2017

Superheroes aren't supposed to die. Our superhero was in the shape of a happy go lucky, vivacious little boy. A little boy with a heart, a soul, and a smile twice the size of his little body. Superheroes are supposed to be invincible, But even Superman had his Kryptonite.

Eiann was born a fighter...from day one he fought, like no one else could, and always beat the odds, even when they weren't in his favor. No one could ever tell him that he "couldn't" do something. Eiann didn't know the meaning of the word "can't."

Eiann loved all of his family dearly. He was so proud to be an uncle and took pride in teaching his nephew many things. This included teaching him how to be as ornery as he was at times. He loved his "people," and his "people" encompassed everyone he ever met. He loved going to both his Nammy's and his Mom Mom's house. He enjoyed being both spoiled and loved by each of them. He loved going for his horseback riding lessons, on his favorite horse Edgar. You see Eiann thought Edgar was special because Edgar was blind in one eye. To Eiann, Edgar was perfect, just like he was.

Eiann loved his puppies, Spot, Bubba, Guppy and Annabelle. He was forever in their company at home. He reveled in all their puppy kisses, in games of fetch, and in all their adoring love.

He also loved school. He looked forward each and every day to see all of his wonderful friends and amazing teachers he had he had there.

He was such a loving child, and everyone who met him loved him. He was an exceptional teacher of how to love. Never judgmental, he accepted all for who they were, with a wide smile and love in his heart. He had the ability to see, and bring out the good in everyone who met him.

Eiann was our light, our beacon to guide us back to shore when life's seas got rough. His enormous smile could melt away all of the troubles the world could possibly throw at us, and make everything better.

Although Angels are supposed to have wings, ours always wore a cape.

He is, and always shall be, our Superman.

“ Eiann was such cute little guy . I loved when he came to Book fair at KES. He would always be in search of anything Superman , and boy when he found it he would light up like a Christmas Tree . He smiled from ear to ear and would dance a bit . He will be missed .
Prayers and hugs to all .

“ Dear Lisa and Jay, Please forgive me for not attending Eiann's service(although I will certainly be there in spirit). I have been having car issues and have an appointment on Saturday to hopefully rectify the issues. Please know that you are in my thoughts and prayers. I shall always remember Eiann's beautiful smile and in reinduction his grumpy affect. He was a true fighter and I hope his beautiful memories will sustain you during this difficult time. Please take comfort in knowing that you did everything you could and that you were wonderful and loving parents to him. Much love and sympathy Pam.
