“ Since childhood I’ve known him not as “Uncle Frank” but instead “Uncle Shecky” – a name he gave himself years back in homage to the comedian Shecky Greene. Uncle Shecky was just that – the comedian in the room, always cracking jokes and lifting people’s spirits. I always enjoyed our spirited conversations around the kitchen table – his understanding of political and social issues was unparalleled. Above all, he was a big hearted and giving man who believed in service to others. He enriched so many others’ lives through his many endeavors and volunteerism. Truly a role model for me. Much love to you, Uncle Shecky, much love. You will be remembered and honored in those you have touched.
