“ Joe and I met in the early seventies. He became one of our best friends. My children even referred to him as Uncle Joe. We did many activities together like baseball coaches, social club members and golf partners. We always had a good time together and we never had a bad word to say to one another. He was a true friend, and he will be sadly missed. Rest in peace Joe. Your friends Dick and Phyllis.

“ When I think of Mr. Joe one word comes to my mind and that is sweetheart, each and every time I saw him he was always smiling. He could always make me smile. I will never forget when we went to visit Ms. Flo in the hospital and Mr Joe was walking in with us and he had his walker and I had just had knee surgery and was moving slow, when he saw me, he said want to race...I just laughed. No matter when I saw him he always would make you feel like you were part of the family. He reminded me so much of my father that being around him always made me feel loved. He is going to be missed greatly. Rest in peace Mr. Joe....Love Karen

“ As I sit here tonight and view this tribute video I see so many of these pictures are of my Mom and Dad together. They are always smiling and happy, holding hands, my Dad with his arm around my Mom's shoulders. It strikes me that I never realized how true and deep their love for each other was, is and always will be. They were not only the best parents anyone could ask for but also true examples of what it means to be a husband and a wife, best friends and partners to each other, bound together in life and in death. They were always referred to as Joe and Flo, two persons that became one. I miss my Dad terribly and will have to work through my grief, but my heart aches for my Mom, who after 50 years will no longer be referred to as Joe and Flo, but just Flo. I will miss seeing my parents together and I miss my Dad, my hero, my confidant, the man who always picked me up, dusted me off, tended to my wounds and wiped away my tears. I miss you Daddy. You can rest now. Love you. Robin
