“ Lauren grew up on the farm in McDaniel. It was the farm that was my mother’s home when she grew up. Lauren and I were both born in 1955. We met in our infancy. She was a companion and dear friend and cousin. The farm was the world for our adventures. . Lauren loved to read. She read Agatha Christie and Charles Dickens. She observed people and described their activities, personalities and motivations. She was always kind and sought out the good in people. We often sang together. She sang in the choir with a lovely, clear voice. We had a thousand sleepovers. We learned all the floorboards that squeaked in her home and mine as we traveled indoors at night while others slept. Her brother, Larry, Lauren and I played a thousand games. Lauren’s rich imagination delighted us. Lauren’s sense of humor was exquisite. She was funny and she encouraged others to be funny. Lauren accomplished many things. She was an excellent student. She understood concepts and she spoke and wrote with eloquence. She was modest, blushing when praised. Her business mind was acute. She took care of friends and family, nurturing their talents, guiding, protecting, feeding, loving. I have always spoken with her, many times each day, anticipating our next meeting when we could share a laugh or observation or pet peave. I am stricken that we will not meet again in this plane. She will be with me, though. Her nearly repressed laugh, her knowing glance, her blush, her look of irritation, her look of pride and delight in the existence of her children and niece and nephews and her Missouri Man. I love you, Lauren

“ Life is too short, I'm glad that I had the honor to know Lauren and her family. Lauren always had a smile and a nice word for everyone. I will always remember all the Scout trips with Lauren and Stewart, the one trip where she broke her ankle and the Scouts made her crutches out of tree branches and the beach trip where she just wanted to get her feet wet and was rolled by a big wave and all the summer camps. Lauren will be missed by many. My thoughts and prayers are with the family.
