“ She accomplished so much in her career. If there were barriers to women, she knocked them down. Proud as she was of her accomplishments, she was not boastful. That said, Lisa was very proud of her son and her father.

Today would have been Lisa's birthday. And if she were in Oxford or Easton I would gather her Country School Alumni and celebrate another lap around the sun. Sadly her memory has faded like the early morning fog rising from the Tred Avon. Sweet dreams Lisa. We hope to see you when it's our turn to come home.
