“ Matt, it is almost 4 years since you left us. You died about 2 weeks before your little brother graduated from high school. Peter was courageous. He loved you dearly but persevered through his exams and graduated. He went to college at Gettysburg and decided after his freshman year not to return.

You were a challenging child. You had colic, which is a collective term for crying constantly. At the time you were born, in 1991, colic was thought to be a digestive problem. Maybe it is. I learned quickly that if I kept you in constant motion you did not cry. Lucky for both of us, I love to dance. So we danced and danced, and I did not feel guilty when I put you in the crib for a few minutes to take a shower or saute something on the stove. You would scream, and the next-door-neighbor would bang on the wall and yell "pick up that child!" My mother and grandmother accused me of spoiling you, and maybe they were right.

Anyway, Matthew, I love you.
