

Reuben G. Brown

December 1, 1939 - January 10, 2018

Reuben Brown of Grasonville, MD, formerly of Washington DC, passed away January 10, 2018, at his home. He was 78.

Born on December 1, 1939, in Washington, he was the son of the late Moses and Adelaide Brown. Reuben grew up in Washington and attended McKinley Tech High School.

Reuben was a man of love, kindness, integrity, honor, and humility. He dearly loved his parents, sister, and brother. He was a devoted father to his sons and imparted his values to them in a way that allowed each to incorporate them into his own life. He adored his grandchildren and was most proud of their dedicated and kind spirits. He was a loving father-in law, brother-in law, uncle, and cousin. He was a steadfast and loving husband. He was a dedicated friend and mentor to many.

Reuben had an intense curiosity about the world and everything in it. He read widely and often, he loved to learn, and he loved to pass on his knowledge to others. He rarely met a stranger who he didn't want to converse with, and he had a way of making anyone he encountered feel special. He had a smile that put people at ease, a sparkle in his eye, and a charming sense of humor.

Reuben began playing piano as a young child and was gifted with ability far beyond his years. He started playing jazz with other local musicians as a teenager and thus began his musical odyssey of over sixty years. He was a prolific composer and lyricist and continued to compose until his last weeks. He earned the respect of jazz musicians and enthusiasts not only because of his musical abilities, but also because he was humble and kind. He played with hundreds of musicians to whom he wished to pay tribute for helping him expand and share his art.

In 1995, Reuben suffered a debilitating stroke that ended his performance career and affected his health for two decades. He and his wife relocated to Grasonville MD, where he found peace in the beauty of nature and open spaces. From the time of his stroke onward, Reuben accepted his limitations with dignity, courage, and grace and continued to do all that he could to live life to its fullest.

Reuben is survived by his wife Jan; his sons, Terence (Shelia), Christian (Shana), Gary (Etoil), and David Augustine (Diana); his grandchildren Jordan, Micah, Daniel, Caleb, Austin, and Macy Brown, and Jenelle, Armand, and Rhigelle Augustine; his sister, Violet; and brother, Moses, Jr. (Adriana); and a multitude of family and friends.

A celebration of life will be held Saturday, January 20, 2018, 11AM at the Chesapeake Bay Beach Club, 500 Marina Club Road, Stevensville, MD.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to Compass Regional Hospice (compassregionalhospice.org), or to a charity of choice.

“ I'm a jazz fan from way back, but Reuben hadn't really been on my radar until one evening years ago when I went to a Mark Murphy concert at the Smithsonian. Mr. Murphy (who died in 2016) devoted the entire second half of his concert to Reuben's compositions, and I thought, "Wow, I need to pay attention to this guy." He was a world-class talent, and, judging by the couple of times I got to speak with him in person, a very nice man.

Reuben was a tremendous talent and Amazing person. Glad you were at the concert John Bay as I produced it and it was Mark's idea for the original Reuben songs. It was a great night for sure. Those great nights were missed, but never will be forgotten. Reuben's kind heart and musical genius created magic that will last always. Sandy Trupp “ Reuben was one of the best jazz pianists ever - we were so lucky to hear him many times at the Bandstand in Baltimore in the 80s. Always enjoyed his solos and talking to him between sets. He told me he always wanted to play string bass. RIP Rueben - your music is still playing in my mind.

Reuben Brown was a member of the Gary Bartz Quintet which featured Mousie Johnson on trumpet, Roland Wilson on Bass and Hugh Walker on drums in the early 1960s at the North End Lounge on Gay at North Avenue. Everyone was captivated with Reuben's keyboard thunder roll technique.
