“ Ms. Francis and I have known each other for a while. I knew her at Corsica Hills. I remember her piano playing when lunch and dinner hour was almost over. I was so impressed with the selection of music in her head. She had no sheet music but would play one tune after another. I left Corsica Hills and went to work at Bayleigh Chase. I remember the morning I showed up for work and saw Ms. Francis. She looked at me and smiled stating "I know you!" We became even closer friends. The center will not be the same without her. She was a special lady who loved her sons.
