

Samuel Charles Dudley

November 29, 2000

Samuel Charles Dudley formally of Church Hill, MD, died at his home in Louisville, Kentucky, on November 29, 2000, after a relatively short illness. He was 85 years old.

Born February 6, 1915, Mr. Dudley, whom some knew as Sam and others as Charles, was the eldest son of Dr. Norman Spear Dudley and Clara Elizabeth Walls Dudley of Church Hill, MD. He graduated from Church Hill High School in 1932 and from Washington College in 1936, having received awards for the highest average in his class for three of his four years there. He subsequently earned degrees in chemical Engineering and in Law from John Hopkins and George Washington Universities, respectively.

He was employed by the Joseph E. Seagram and Sons Company until his retirement in 1980. At that time he served as Director of Research for the company though, like many successful businessmen, he held various positions within the corporation at different times in his forty-year career. He and his family lived in Indian, Maryland, Connecticut, and Illinois before returning to Louisville for the third time in 1971.

He is survived by two daughters, Suzanne Dudley Hoffa of State College, PA and Marian Dudley Friske of Virginia Beach, VA; and by three grandchildren, Parker, Clayton and Elizabeth. He is also survived by two brothers, Philip of Assaria, Kansas, and Norman of Valrico, Florida.

Funeral Services for Mr. Dudley and for his wife, Gladys Rebecca will be held at 3:00 p.m. on Friday December 8, 2000 at St. Paul's Episcopal Church and Cemetery in Chestertown, MD. She preceded him in death by a mere eight days after 60 years of marriage. She was a native and also a graduate of Washington College.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made in the names of Gladys Rebecca and Samuel Charles Dudley to Washington College, 300 Washington Avenue, Chestertown, MD 21620.
