“ Mom, I will always cherish all the wonderful memories I have of you...our conversations in the morning while we waited for everyone to wake up.... You were always first to wake up.... First you'd say your prayers, and then make us the biggest breakfast. Your meals were the best, and you never missed a chance to ask me “Is that all your eating?... here, take more !” You always amazed me with your love for us all, and that you put everyone before your self in all you did. I'll miss hearing you say “That's my Joe” after I fix something for you, and it won't be the same without you singing “Bee de beep beep beep, while you work around the house. I love you and Dad like my own parents, you've given me so many wonderful gifts of love and patients, and taught me so much about family and caring for others... Mom, the lessons you taught us all will stay alive and close. So until we all meet again in heaven, know that I will always love and keep you with me in my heart.##imported-begin##Joseph Cassone##imported-end##

“ As I watched you take your last breath - it was the worst moment of my life, that became one of my happiest, because I knew you were free of pain and discomfort. What you have been through in the past 18 months has truly gained you your wings and a place in Heaven with God. Thank you for all that I have learned from your strength, honesty, and loving unconditionally. You were the glue that held this family together. I know I could never fill your shoes (you being a nine and I am only a six and a half) -but I will do my best to keep this family strong and together. You married an amazing man - the care and love dad has given you during your illness has made this family proud (I think I have one too - I know you thought so). We all thank you and dad for being such great role models. I could go on and on but you always new how much I love you and appreciate who you were and all you have done for me, so thanks for all the wonderful memories that will sustain me until we will be together again for eternity. Love Always, Janice###imported-begin##Janice Cassone###imported-end##

“ Dear Toni and family,
although I didn't know your mom personally I feel like I knew her by listening to your stories about her life, her sense of humor, strength and love that she gave to everyone who was fortunate to be part of her life...She is in peace now watching over her family from above. My thoughts are with you.
