“ To Steve's family and friends--

Please accept my condolences on the occasion of Steve's passing. In the hoping it will bring you solace, I would like to share some special memories I have of Steve.

In his work and deeds, Steve was a remarkable man, and he was a person of substantial influence in my life. In 1975, Steve and his colleague Rowland Hill provided me with a tremendous career opportunity at the Naval Electronic Systems Command that would become my life's vocation of procurement and contracting in support of the Fleet and other warfighters who defend our Nation. For this, I always will owe Steve a tremendous debt of gratitude and appreciation, and I can only hope the results of my subsequent professional efforts validated his early confidence in me. In 1976, when I received word at the office that my wife Rosa had passed away to cancer, Steve immediately came to my aid, taking me to his home, accompanying me throughout the day, and helping guide me in making the necessary arrangements that I could not imagine doing otherwise. Through his steadfast example as a loving, caring family man, Steve was a positive influence for the day when I, too, would eventually become a family man and raise three sons, my "buds" -- as I remember Steve affectionately referred to his own children.

May God shine His face upon Steve and grant him eternal life in Heaven, and may the memories of happier times be a source of strength to Steve's family and friends through this difficult time.

Best Regards,

Gary Blasser

“ My deepest sympathy to the Carberry family. Steve was a friend and a mentor for many years and a wonderful person. He was very proud of his family; especially his grandchildren. The last time I saw Steve he shared pictures of the beautiful house he had bought. I will miss him.
