“ When checking up on old classmates, was shocked that Whalen had passed so long ago. He was fullback on our soccer team, and we'd hang out together.
I remember we visited his dad on a jobsite for some reason. He was laying concrete blocks, a 12x8x16 concrete block in one hand, and a trowel in the other. Impressive.
Upon returning from Nam, Whale worked with me at Tenneco. He was chunky in high school, but a different guy as an adult. We were horseing around one day at work and he put me in a hold that no matter how hard I tried, I couldn't move. All I could do is laugh. I'll never forget that, or the night his wife called him at work after finding a shotgun he bought and hid in the coat closet.
